'These Are The Times That Try Men's Souls'

"These are the times that try men's souls. The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of their country; but he that stands it now, deserves the love and thanks of men and women." - Thomas Paine 1737-1809

By Andree A. Belisle

MILLBURY - Ask most local residents if they know who Terry Burke Dotson is and their first response would be "a member of the Millbury Planning Board." What many people don't know about Dotson is that she is also a single parent, an employee of the United States Postal Service, and a Petty Officer 1st Class in the United States Navy Reserve. It is this last bit of information that draws attention to her as the United States faces the prospect of war with Iraq.

Dotson is named Officer of the Day at training exercises at Camp Pendleton.

Dotson has been a member of the reserves for 16 years, having begun her military career in the Army National Guard during the Vietnam War in 1974. She was working towards her master's degree in counseling at Suffolk University when she decided to enlist. "I took my last exam for my master's degree and left. I never went to graduation," she said. "I went through field medic school and because I was an honors graduate they gave me a choice of another school, and I chose surgery. While I was in the midst of my training the war ended. I wanted to go and do my thing. You're young, you want to do things, go to war. I was ready to go."

She was not quite so ready to go on Friday, August 24, when a call came asking her to "volunteer" to report for temporary active duty. Her reaction to the call: "My knees started to shake, my hands and my arms, I started shaking all over," she said. "They asked if I wanted to volunteer to go; I said no. That was my first reaction. I then asked, 'Go where?' He said right now they're talking Bethesda because they want people to fill in. I knew I wasn't ready," Dotson said, "I had so many things I wanted to do. I called back and said if I were to volunteer to go to Bethesda immediately would that preclude me from having to go to Saudi Arabia. The answer I got back was 'No.' I thought if there's no advantage, I would stay and try to get everything settled around here. On a Friday you're not going to be able to get everything done and leave on a Monday. I said I can't do it; I can't leave on Monday, but you can put my name down on the next call for volunteers. They call you first and give you the choice, she explained. "If they can't get volunteers, then it's a mandatory call up. I'd rather volunteer, but I found out from the Post Office that if I do volunteer they won't continue my coverage for life and health insurance. So if I volunteer I end up losing everything. I think they do have to keep my job open. Mandatory means that everything is there when I get back. Volunteer is shaky."

Among the things Dotson has to get settled are arrangements for her six year old daughter Terry. The only reason why I'm very hesitant to go," she said, "is Terry; the emotional impact on her when I have to leave. I know I'm coming back but I feel it will be very emotional for her."

Dotson said she has made arrangements with a cousin in Holden who shares her values to care for her daughter. "My cousin and her husband are a good Christian family and they understand fully what I want for Terry. I can't leave her with her dad because he's also active duty and he could be called. Rather than bounce her

MILLBURY - Iraq, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, countries whose names have recently become all too familiar. Yet despite the fact that we've almost become accustomed to hearing these names spoken or written daily in the news, we still feel a distance, a detachment, as though what is happening at the other end of the earth in these strange, antique lands has little or no impact on our communities.

For some of our friends and neighbors, proudly and sadly this is not the case. This was made evident in a conversation with Janice Williams, mother of Lance Corporal Robert J. Guyan USMC, who brought to our attention the fact that many Millbury and Sutton natives are presently on active duty in the Armed Forces and some, like her son, are now stationed in Saudi Arabia. "It would be nice," she said, "if the towns could show their support for our children by tying a yellow ribbon around their trees or lamp posts or by displaying the American flag while our boys are over there." As she spoke, she mentioned the many Millbury servicemen that she was aware of who were presently serving their country and wondered about the number that she did not know. She explained that she is in contact with their families and they help support one another.

Williams spoke affectionately of her son, Bob, a 1989 graduate of Millbury High School. "He (joined the Marine Corps) because it was always something he wanted to do, and more so in the last five years. All he's ever talked is Marine, Marine, Marine, and that's what he wanted and nobody could change his mind. He felt it was something he wanted to do."

Lance Cpl. Guyan has three years left to serve of his four year enlistment. He is a heavy artillery specialist who trained in California, ironically, his mother said, for desert warfare. "I felt good about the fact that he was trained in desert warfare; I figured, what are the chances that we have a desert war?" she said with a laugh.

Janice Williams became more serious as she spoke of her son's most recent letter which was written on board the transport which was scheduled to arrive in Saudi Arabia around September 1. "He said by the time we got his letter, he'd be in Saudi Arabia." The letter was mailed from the Philippines when the ship docked to resupply. Guyan described the trip to the Philippines saying that the ship ran into a typhoon shortly after it left Japan and most of the servicemen were seasick.

Guyan's mother said the tone of the letter showed that her son was a bit anxious about arriving. "He said he felt like he was heading out for the biggest football game of the year," she said.

"His letters aren't like those you saw on TV during Vietnam, questioning the war. They're more in support of the action," said Janice's husband, Dick Williams.

"I feel that our boys need support," Janice emphasized. "Each town has their own kids out there, and I think Millbury is just unaware how many kids are out there in one branch of the service or another. It's important that we get the names of all the people serving

Will Remember Moore's Efforts

To the Editor:

There is a plaque in the Uxbridge Senior Center thanking Representative Richard T. Moore for helping to get the grant that provided the center. Seniors in Uxbridge and neighboring towns really do appreciate that center!

The first vans for senior citizens in Uxbridge and Millville were received through Mr. Moore's efforts to help us write the application for a transportation grant. Rep. Moore also supports state funding for councils on aging and elder home care.

The district senior citizens conference that Mr. Moore sponsors each year in Uxbridge has provided useful information to many local seniors. I also know that Mr. Moore has helped countless senior citizens with a variety of personal concerns.

We'll remember in November that Representative Moore has been a great friend to the senior citizens throughout the area.

Says Kollios Will Make Right Choices

To the Editor:

In response to Florence Gagne's letter which appeared in mid-August, do you know that if Rep. Paul Kollios hadn't had the guts (in an election year) to vote for some tax increases, your children would be going back to drastically understaffed schools? Do you know that crime prevention programs would have been cut? Do you know that essential public safety employees (fire, police) would have been laid off? Do you realize that monies to care for the elderly in nursing homes would have been cut, preventing these people from being adequately cared for? Are you aware that the mentally and physically disabled would have suffered?

Do you know that Paul Kollios refused to vote to increase taxes until further budget cuts were made? Do you know that he initiated an amendment to the state budget introducing a 5-fold plan to reduce the state's funding of Medicaid by identifying a source of federal matching funds, saving the state $30 million?

Are you aware that many other states had to increase taxes 2-3 years ago in order to subsidize programs for which the federal government would no longer provide Federal Revenue Sharing? (Approximate annual tax increases: New Jersey - $2 billion; New York - $3 billion; Connecticut- $1.5 billion; New Hampshire is in the process of increasing taxes).

State representatives have to make some tough choices which may not be politically popular, but are necessary. I'm thankful that we have a conscientious, informed representative in the 7th Worcester District. I trust Paul Kollios to make the right choices. You should too.

Committee Reviews Concerns Over Rte. 146 Options

By Edward J. Cooney

MILLBURY - The Rte. 146 Interchange Study Committee met in the Planning Board Conference Room at 6:40 on August 23 to discuss issues surrounding two options proposed by the State for the section of 146 that would affect Millbury. Committee members include: Dave Hulseberg and Bernard Plante, co-chairmen; Richard Letendre, clerk; Tom Nault, fire chief; Peter Boria, business representative; Ron Richards, safety officer; and William Pratt, a resident of Park Hill Avenue.

In attendance for the meeting were six residents living in the Rte. 146 corridor who may be affected by the options.

Hulseberg explained that the committee was formed to study the proposals for Options 1 and 2 for the proposed interchanges for the Massachusetts Turnpike, Rte. 20, and the reconfiguration of the Rte. 146 corridor from 122A to the Worcester line. He also noted that the committee encourages full participation from anyone affected by or concerned with the development project. The committee intends to develop a proposal and submit a report to the Board of Selectmen by October 1, with or without recommendations.

A sub-committee established to study the safety issues surrounding the two options met on August 8. Members of the subcommittee were Hulseberg, Richards and Nault.

Richards briefly discussed the findings of the sub-committee. Using a wall display, he noted that one of the major problems with the proposals involves people who live in the area of the old Town Line Club. The plans show that ambulance, police, or fire department calls for that area would require that they go all the way into Worcester before the equipment could go back if the area is blocked off and houses are left there. This would include Johnson Street. "It would be a real hassle for police, fire and ambulance services to gain access to that area," Richards said. He also noted that Fire Chief Nault had concerns with hydrant access for any industry or buildings that might be put up along Rte. 146.

"The people on Park Hill will have a problem as the traffic on Park Hill is going to multiply quite a bit in comparison to what it is now," Richards said. "The section of Park Hill that goes to Rte. 20 is gong to be blocked off." He suggested that the dangerous intersection presently there be enlarged and maybe an island put in to avoid head on accidents.

Hulseberg noted Engine 1 of the fire department trying to service Granger Lynch on McCracken Road and other parcels along that area would be concerned with the turning radius for access to that area.

Hulseberg suggested that with increased commercial traffic such as tankers using the interchanges and highways in the area along Rte. 20 and Rte. 146, there is not adequate access nor means for adequate fire protection. "What we are looking for is more water lines or access for dry hydrants along the Blackstone for vehicle fire protection," he said.

According to Hulseberg, with the closing off of Park Hill at Rte. 146, there would be a need for another road to provide access on to 146, North or South, and on to Rte. 122A. He also said that a rotary in the area of 146 and 122A may be a necessity.

On Option 2, there is no option for a turnaround to go South other than going all the way down to Millbury Street in Worcester to turn around as it presently is designed. Hulseberg pointed out that access to Rte. 20 and the Mass. Turnpike will be possible with the new designs for traffic going both Northbound and Southbound. He also said that people living along and near Rte. 146 at Worcester County Properties and Chabot Motors will see an increase in noise levels as the traffic in that area will double.

Hulseberg then explained to the audience that the committee is interested in hearing the concerns of the people in the area. "We will try to make recommendations to the selectmen to try to push for one of these two plans or to make a recommendation that we don't think any of these two plans should happen," he said. "There has been over the past 20 years a great impetus going on in the Blackstone Valley and through the City of Worcester to make something happen. What the state is proposing to do for those of you people who have property on Horne Street or along Rte. 146 where you have a curb cut permit, is to provide two, 12 1/2 foot lanes heading North with a 10 foot break down lane in front of your house. I'm not going to say that there won't be people traveling in the breakdown lane because we all have seen that," he said.

Main Street resident Sandra Buteau asked how wide the present lanes are. Hulseberg replied that they are probably 10 feet now but noted that the breakdown lane is not 10 feet either. He said there would be a widening of the road on the west side and the road would be moved over a little.

"Regardless of whether option 1 or 2 is recommended," Hulseberg said, "it is the safety committee's observation that the proposed cul-de-sac at the area of the Town Line Club at Rte. 20 is not satisfactory. We'd rather see signalization at that point or possibly breakaway gates for police, fire, and ambulance service if there is to be a cul-de-sac. We are looking for a turnaround there for safety reasons, such as a fire or accident in the southbound lane. The fire equipment and police need access to that lane."

Buteau asked if there were any proposed speed limits for that area. Hulseberg said no recommendations have been received as yet. He did note that traffic is now moving on Rte. 146 at speeds up to 65 m.p.h.

Officer Richards said that at present some traffic moves along at 65-70 m.p.h. along that stretch of road. "Regardless of what they post it at," he said, "they will see a large highway and think they have the freedom to go faster."

Hulseberg also referred to what some perceive as inequities in Millbury's options as compared to the City of Worcester's. "Worcester is receiving an entire new road with very few homes being affected," he said. The present Ballard Street will remain as a local and secondary road and will not be impacted or affected by the proposal. Hulseberg said the state isn't saying it is going to take any homes unless they are inside a loop or are in the line of a roadway.

Hulseberg indicated that he didn't think the state would be selecting an option until mid-November. "It's the committee's goal to try to get some recommendations out by October 1 to try to influence some type of decision as best we can," he said.

Main Street resident Armand Audette commented that Millbury is catering to the whole Worcester area. "Millbury has been a soft touch for years for Worcester, Worcester County and the State of Massachusetts," he said. "We have the purification works, we had the city dump behind us, now the State created the Mass Pike where they created a lot of damage in our area when they did blasting. We received some compensation but it was not satisfactory. They also split up the Latti Farm land as well. It seems like Millbury is being the soft touch for everybody. We are taking a beating," Audette said.

Hulseberg replied that the committee was formed to address such issues. "Let's say something, and let's say it loud," he said. "I don't believe any of us are here to cater to Worcester or the State. We are here to say something and get the political actors together and make them do their job," Hulseberg said.

Audette noted that there are already exits off the Mass. Pike in Auburn and Millbury and asked how many more are needed. He suggested more will cause more havoc with traffic and people.

Richards replied that the major reason for the new interchange is for better access into Worcester.

Buteau raised the question of school bus safety along Rte. 146. She said she has witnessed many near accidents.

Hulseberg said that issue has been overlooked and with the projected volume of traffic it is something that needs to be incorporated in the committee's study.

Letendre too noted that he has witnessed near accidents on Rte. 146 and said he did see a school bus read ended.

Audette expressed concern that people whose homes may be taken may not be given much time to go out and look for another house since the state hasn't given out any information.

Buteau asked if the town may look at taking or acquiring property for business and commercial use.

Hulseberg replied that the area is zoned for business and commercial use and as more talk develops around the economic issues there may be a recommendation for the state to take land. "Possibly people in the area may prefer that their property be taken," he said.

The committee voted to establish two time periods for public hearings on Thursday, September 13th. A hearing will be held from 2-4 p.m. and another from 6:30-8:30 p.m. in the Planning Board Conference Room.

Town Administrator Dexter Blois reported that a copy of the "Notice of Sale" of surplus property has been posted and that the town is accepting sealed bids on the first, second, and third Wednesdays in September with the bids to be opened on Monday, October 1.

Manchaug Field Day

Jean LeClaire, Chairwoman of the Manchaug Field Day, presented a check for $2,090.97 which was raised at the event. (After the meeting, LeClaire told the Chronicle that she had been given an additional check for $250, bringing the total raised to $2,340.47.) Proceeds from the fund raising events are earmarked for restoration of the Post 390 American Legion Veteran's Field for use by Sutton residents.

Selectman Mike Chizy applauded the efforts of the committee whose venture not only raised a significant amount for the restoration of the field but provided the whole town of Sutton with a fun-filled day of activities.

While praising the efforts of the committee of which he was a part, Selectman Rick LaBonte explained that part of the success was due to the fact that the committee was given town-wide support and participation.

Connor called for a round of applause for LeClaire, who directed the day's events.

LeClaire, in expressing her acknowledgments to the many people, organizations, politicians and businesses who participated, stressed that the success was do to the tireless energy of the committee and all who supported their efforts.

The committee's next fund raiser will be a dance at the Dudley Gendron American Legion Post on Boston Road on September 22 from 8-12 p.m. Tickets are $5.00. Music will be provided by "The Blue Sky Band" free of charge.

Elderbus, Inc.

Gail Hill of the Central Massachusetts Regional Planning Commission (CMRPC) and Ray Smith, representing of Elderbus, Inc. joined Council on Aging (COA) Director Judith Shute to explain the advantages of joining Elderbus.

Shute explained that Elderbus will improve the services being offered to Sutton elderly at a lower cost. The town will also not have to face maintaining and repairing its own vehicle, a cost which Shute said was becoming excessive.

Blois explained that if the town bought its own vehicle, it would not qualify for state and federal reimbursement. "The state is not giving grants for anything whether it's sewerage or anything unless it's regional," he said.

COA member Larry Moore said, "You (the selectmen) must recognize the initiative of our Senior Center Director in pursuing this, in presenting an article, and in following it through to this point. She's done a marvelous job."

The board voted unanimously to approve the use of Elderbus, Inc.

Appointments

Police Chief William Baker met with the board to discuss his recommendation to appoint Sergeant John Annis to Lieutenant effective September 1.

between here and the West Coast and possibly leave her stranded out there, she's better here where it's stable.

"When you look at the possibility of dying, to abandon Terry at this age and not to be with her to guide her through her life, if I look at that, it really gets me upset," Dotson said while chocking back the tears. "I'm ready to die; I'm not looking forward to it, but if I were to die today, spiritually I'm ready for that. I just hope that Terry gets the spiritual guidance that she needs. We're only here to help other people get to heaven and to get to heaven ourselves."

Dotson has held back telling her daughter that she may have to leave because she still holds out hope for a peaceful solution to the Mid-East crisis. "I think she knows something," Dotson ventured. "but I just let it go because, at this point in time, they're talking about peace or negotiations. I don't want to upset her or cause her to worry at this point."

Dotson said her daughter recently became very emotional after viewing a tape of a Christmas special that showed a young donkey by the name of Nestor whose mother dies shielding him during a snowstorm. "I told her, 'If I were to die Terry, I wouldn't be totally gone. I would still be in your heart. I would be in heaven, and I would be watching you. I would never really be away from you.' If I do get a stateside assignment," Dotson said hopefully, "in all likelihood I would be able to bring her with me. They wouldn't like it. Instead of living on the base I would pay for an apartment. Unfortunately the military does not count children as a reason for not going anyplace. You have to sign your children away. I knew that when I re-upped. I feel that the military has given me so much that it's something I should give back to them."

Dotson sees the role of the military in Saudi Arabia as a peace keeping force. "Military people are not killers," she said. "I have people in my family that think that the military does nothing but train killers. I've been in for over 16 years and I have never, ever run across an active duty person or a reservist or National Guard person that was a killer just waiting for a war to happen so they could go in and legally murder people. Everybody I've met has been like me, a family person, wanting to get in there and do a job."

Dotson then offered the following analogy to illustrate her point. "If you had a briefcase, and you put it in the middle of a mall and left it on the ground, before you could even turn your back and walk away somebody would grab it and run away. But if you had a Doberman Pincher chained to the handle of that briefcase and left it there, it would be there when you got back or the dog would be dead. That's what our mission is," she said with conviction. "Our mission is not to kill people, it's to show our appearance to keep peace just by the fact that if we had to kill you we could. If we had to go to war you'd be hurting. It's a form of deterrence. That's the way we all think. We don't want to go over and drop bombs and kill children. We don't think that way. In my 16 years I've never met anyone who was bloodthirsty. I've met thousands of people. We know that our being there is a deterrent and makes people stand up and take notice."

Dotson spent her two weeks of reserve training this past June at Camp Pendleton in California. She surmised that there must have been some inkling of an impending crisis in the Mid-East because, for the first time in her 16 years of training the soldiers were given camouflage uniforms, combat boots, and told they were going set up a field hospital in the dessert surrounding the Camp.

Dotson became animated as she explained that it took 175 military personnel only three hours to set up a functioning hospital in the dessert. "We had everything functioning," she said with pride. "The air conditioning was on, the generators were in place, all the x-ray machines were working, a complete 50 bed hospital, emergency treatment, receiving, surgical unit, central supply, a dental unit, all working in three hours."

The soldiers also had to carry their gas masks with them while erecting the camp. Dotson explained that training for chemical warfare has been in place for as long as she can remember, but it made their job more difficult. "It (the mask) was heavy, it was hot, it was inconvenient. You didn't have the freedom of moment. You had to have it with you because at any time they could shout 'Gas' and you had to have your mask on in so many seconds or you were dead."

Food provided to military personnel has never been described as "gourmet," but Dotson called it "horrible." "You get a dried plastic pack of freeze dried food. You'd better have some water in your canteen otherwise nothing is edible. The hot dogs were good and the baked beans were good. That's what they're eating now in Saudi Arabia," she said. "Once the mess hall is set up you can count on hot meals. They don't have the refrigeration so you eat a lot of beans."

Injecting a bit of humor into the interview, Dotson continued, "One day we'd have bean salad and beaked beans and the next day we'd have chili and bean salad. In a classroom with 175 people in the heat, with only one door, it was a real test of endurance."

Dotson also explained that U.S. soldiers stationed in Saudi Arabia will have more than just physical discomforts to endure. "I worked with the Saudi Government when I worked in Washington D.C. One of our main clients was the Saudi government. We would send instructors over there to train them how to be automobile mechanics and the like. The people were paid big money. The conditions they had to live in were grim, and they were very restricted. I took over the audio visual department from someone and when it came time to replace him, I said, 'Here I am.' They gave the job to a man who knew nothing about the job. They told me it was because the Saudis would have nothing to do with a woman. Your ability didn't count."

Dotson said her first reaction when hearing that female personnel were being sent to Saudi Arabia was, "Oh, no. They don't even know. The Saudis are very religious and don't so that we can make the town aware of the sacrifice that they're making and send them our support."

"From his (Bob's) letters and what we see on TV, the morale is there, but it's sustaining that morale that's important," Dick said. "Is that morale going to be there two months from now, five months from now. They do seem to be up, but we've got to help them."

Janice is grateful for the many calls and comments she receives from his friends. "They ask how they can help," she said grateful for the support. "This is where the yellow ribbons come in, or showing the red, white and blue, or flying the American flag, or anything they want to do that's patriotic or show that they care for us families in this town who have children in Saudi Arabia, on their way, or on alert. It just makes us feel better, and it's nice if we can write and tell the kids that they have our support."

One of the nicest gestures of support her family has received has been from the Millbury High Football Team on which Bob played all of his four years. This year, Janice was told by the team that they were going to dedicate the season to Bob.

Janice described Bob's last phone call that he made before he shipped out, "He called me at work to say goodbye, and, at that point, I felt he was pretty up because they were Gung Ho. He said that it was his job. He said, 'Mom, I joined knowing that this could happen someday. It's my job and I'm going to go out and do the best job I can.'

"What did surprise me," Janice continued, her tone becoming more serious, "he did make a statement - of course, I did cry, being a mother hearing it - all through his four years of high school he never drank; he was dead set against it, dead set against drugs - he said to me, 'Well, Ma, I'm going to be OK; don't worry about me; I know what I'm doing. But just in case something happens, and I don't come home, I'd rather see the guys in the green uniforms tell you that I went out doing something worthwhile than having two policemen tell you I was killed in a car crash because I did drugs or drinking.' He said it to me more than once," she said with a measure of pride mixed with sadness. "It was like he was telling me to be proud, but he didn't have to tell me, because I am proud of him."

We would also like to invite family, friends and relatives of those serving in the military to submit a picture and the addresses of servicemen and women to be published in our paper on an on-going basis so that those interested in supporting them might drop them a line or a card.

Police Chief to Run for Jimmy Fund

MILLBURY - Police Chief Ron Stokowski is currently in training for the seventh annual "Police Chiefs Run for Jimmy," scheduled for September 29 and 30. Police chiefs from across the Commonwealth will participate in the hope of raising $75,000 to benefit cancer research and treatment at the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute in Boston. The run will begin on the 29th in Hancock on the New York-Massachusetts border, and will pass through 24 towns before arriving at the Institute in Boston on September 30th.

The Massachusetts Chiefs of Police Association has been involved with the Jimmy Fund since 1948, when members of the Association visited the Jimmy Fund Building and saw the work that was being done for children suffering from cancer. It was then decided by the members of the Association to make the Jimmy Fund their only endorsed charity, and to work to raise funds to assist the doctors, scientists and technicians in their research and treatment of cancer in children.

All Chiefs in the Association have been asked to pledge a sum of money. Stokowski has pledged to participate in the run from start to finish. If you would like to make a contribution to the run, call 865-3521 or send a check payable to the Jimmy Fund to the Millbury Police Department, 127 Elm Street, Millbury, MA 01527.

After the 10:00 a.m. Worship Service, a Beach Party will be held on the Millbury Common, next to the Church, at 11:00 a.m. Beach Party activities such as face painting, "fishing," bubble blowing, "pearl diving," wet sponge tossing and other surprises will be available. A prize will be given for the "loudest" beach shirt. At noon, everyone will share in a cookout of "cl"-hamburgers and hot "sea" dogs. Bring a dish to share and a donation to pay for the meat.

In presenting the board his rationale for the promotion, Baker said that the change in effect was implementing the recommendation of former Chief Robert Conley which was to have supervisory personnel on all shifts.

Baker said, "Every police organization our size, in my opinion should have at least one non-union supervisory person to act as a go-between between the chief and the union personnel, sergeants and patrolmen, in the areas like policy making decisions and disciplinary matters. It's difficult for the sergeants, although the sergeants do a very effective job of supervising the patrolmen. A lieutenant in a non-union position would be in a much better position to do a more effective job."

Baker had high praise for the nominee for the position, Sergeant John Annis. Commending Annis for his skill and integrity, he again renewed his recommendation to promote Annis.

Connor asked about the budget implications of the promotion. Baker explained that he was working with former Chief Shaw's budget but felt that he could offset Annis' $3,900 increase in pay, in part by some of the gains which the promotion will present. Baker said that Annis is presently on a four day on two day off schedule which in effect gives him 17 extra days off a year. Under his new schedule, Annis will no longer have that, and there will be savings there.

Selectman Wally Johnson told Baker he had no problem with the appointment but felt the board should wait until the October Town Meeting and go for an appropriation of money to fund the position. Johnson also added that it would be an opportunity for the chief to address the residents and allow them to get to know him.

LaBonte said that Sutton has gone through some traumatic times and that John Annis' appointment would help alleviate some of the acrimony that developed. LaBonte praised Annis and pointed out that he would do a fine job for Sutton.

Selectman David Strieby said that he felt if there was money in the police department's budget to fund the position, there was no reason to delay the appointment.

Blois produced a January 3, 1989 copy of a notice of a public hearing to discuss the reorganization of the police department. It read that "said proposal involved a reorganization of the police department such that now it would consist of seven patrolmen, four sergeants, one lieutenant and the chief." According to Blois, the proposal included not filling the lieutenant's position at that time, but it did not eliminate it. He said the normal process was to ratify the Town Administrator's appointment and not to go to the town meeting since no money was involved.

Johnson insisted that the position will cost the town more money, and it should be approved by the town meeting.

Connor said she supported the idea of re-organization but did not think the procedure was proper. "I'm disappointed that it's being presented in this way, but I support the motion."

Chizy commented that this issue has been going on for three weeks and he saw no reason to delay the appointment any longer.

John Annis was appointed Lieutenant effective September 1.

Task Force Subcommittee

A discussion on the timeliness and composition of the Environment and Health Subcommittee of the Power Plant Task Force occupied an hour of the board's time.

LaBonte said he wanted to get the subcommittee started in order to answer questions relating to the health and environmental impact which were raised but never satisfactorily answered during the debate over the proposed citing of an 80 megawatt peak power generating facility at the corner of Rt. 146 and Central Turnpike.

John Mathews, Chairman of the Power Plant Task Force (PPTF) said his committee raised two issues: (1) if there is to be a subcommittee, they ask that it be a subcommittee of the PPTF and (2) it was the unanimous decision of the task force that their report, which they anticipate completing by October 3, be given to Blois and they be allowed to produce their findings and study before the subcommittee be appointed, or if the subcommittee is appointed before their report is submitted to Blois, that the task force target what the subcommittee will study.

LaBonte said, "There are people who want to know what the risks are, are they real or imagined? But I think to postpone this again would be a mistake." He said that he has found qualified members to serve on the subcommittee: Dr. Gilbert M.D., Dr. Lorraine Popowicz, Ph.D., Janice Pacenka, and Jane Kerins.

Connor said that LaBonte was going under the assumption that all of the questions that were asked by him in a two page letter would not be answered by the Task Force. She said that the task force is one of the hardest working committees and she feels that the board and the town owes it to the task force to wait and see what they've defined. She added that she thought the subcommittee would confuse matters since it has not been given a specific enough assignment.

Chizy commented that the task force has done a laudable job, but it was his experience that all questions could not be answered by the task force and this is a good chance to have these questions answered with the help of qualified persons.

"All I'm asking is that we wait until we get the final report," Connor said. "If you're going to appoint a subcommittee you should define what is expected of them."

Johnson said the task force was doing a fine job and that it should be allowed to complete its work before another committee is formed.

LaBonte responded that the task force was not asked to study the health and environmental effects of smokestack industries. "There were enough questions raised to look at the environmental and health effects of smokestack industries. That's where I was going with my original motion," he said.

Mathews suggested that the board wait until a site is chosen before they set up a committee.

LaBonte responded that he felt it was better to do the groundwork now before the town had a repeat performance of the controversy which surrounded the power plant hearings.

After more discussion, it was moved that a Power Plant Task Force Subcommittee of five be appointed. The vote was 4 in favor, 0 opposed, with Johnson abstaining.

give any credence at all to women. They don't speak to them; (women are) lower than dirt. That's not going to change," she said. "They don't want the Americans mixing with their culture. They don't want them offending their people. You can't enforce your values on them."

Another issue that has arisen should Dotson be called to active duty is her role on the Planning Board. Dotson said she was told that her seat on the planning board could be held for only six months, and the selectmen could appoint someone to fill out her term. "If I miss it by one meeting, I'm going to be very upset," she quipped. "Maybe they could reappoint me if I got there before they made their final selection."

The threat of war in the Mid-East has forced many people to reevaluate their lives, especially those who face the prospect of serving on a battleground. The philosopher in Dotson emerged as she stated, "I'm a rational person. I surely wouldn't be willing to run head-on into oncoming traffic just to prove I'm brave. I know my job, and I'll take care of myself. If I die I'm ready anyway. I don't plan on it, and I don't want to, and I trust in God to give me good guidance. Everybody is praying for me. I don't want them to pray for me," she said, "I want them to pray for peace. I'll be fine."

Hansel and Gretel in Sutton

SUTTON - The Sutton Arts Lottery Council will sponsor a performance of "Hansel and Gretel" by the Connecticut Opera on Tour on November 9 at 7:30 p.m. in the Sutton Elementary School. This performance is made possible by a Massachusetts Arts Lottery grant.

Grant recipients in the spring funding cycle were Sutton Camp Fire for two performances by Puppet Productions, the Children's Heritage Festival during Blackstone Valley Heritage Homecoming, Sutton Public Library for art enrichment classes for children, and Jeffrey Nedoroscik for study of Egyptian art and architecture. Nedoroscik will be sharing his experiences with Sutton residents during the year.

The purpose of these grants is to enrich the community with quality art work, programs and events; encourage local artists; and to provide school children with a first-hand experience in music, drama or art in a theater or museum.

Basic Graphics Course

MILLBURY - The Millbury Public Library, 128 Elm Street, will offer Graf-X, a basic graphics course, to students in grades three and up on Thursday, September 13, at 3:30 p.m.

Graf-X, taught on the Library's Apple IIE computer, is not only designed to teach students how to become computer "artists," but also to become familiar with the computer keyboard and its functions. This course is a must for students who want to use the Children's Room computer and who want to take the Word Processing course that will be offered later in September. Call 865-1181 for registration and information.
